PROSPECTUS OF THE NEW-YORK MIRROR.

Volume the Seventh. YO volum of the New-York Mirror was even begun under such favourable auspices as the present. For the last few months our subscriptionlist has increased with a rapidity altegether unex ampled in the history of this periodical. Our friends are more numerous, our resources more ample, and our exertions to render the Mirror one of the most interesting and valuable repositories of literature and the fine arts, shall be as unflagg-

Our old correspondents will continue to furnish nginal papers on a great variety of subjects inreresting to the general reader; and new writers have been engaged for special purposes. At gentleman, who holds a high rank in the estimation of his countrymen as a graceful and easy writer, will furnish us with occasional sketches from

In the course of the volume, fifty pieces of popular music will be published-selected by Messrs.

BERKELBY, HORN, RUSSELL, KNIGHT, etc. SIX SUPERB ENGNAVINGS, (including the two issued with the present number,) will be given, engraved by DANEORTH, PARKES, etc., from original designs and portraits by WEIR, INMAN, CHAPMAN, etc. A number of curtous excurnes on wood will also pe published in the present volume, engraved by Adams, Anderson, Johnston, etc., from original While we shall neverlforget that the New York Mirror is purely an American work, we shall not, on that account, exclude interesting extracts from English journals of merit-and shall also continue our translations from the French, German and

Nothing shall be left undone to render this work, in its literary character, its engravings, its music and its aypegraphp, if not superior, to anp period-

A number of literary novelties, curious historical legends, Aerican reminiscences, and Indian traditions, are riready in prepration. Indeed, every subject within the range of literature or the fine orts is embraaced in its plan; and it has re-Lots Nos. 3 and 4, lying in the Commons, ceived the commendation of the press throughout known as the property of John McElwee.
